Introduction

This Presidential Overview is a document summarizing the actions and initiatives taken under the presidency of Mathieu Plaquevent and the commitment of all the members of the association from the 1st of May to the 31st of July. This should be provided and shared to the next president as well as the members in order to update and highlight the evolution of AJODD.

Subject I - Implemented, Ongoing and Pending Projects

Building Connections and Bridging Divides (Pending) [Mathieu]

The "Building Connections and Bridging Divides" project was created in response to a clear observation : social inequalities, although often overlooked, remain deeply embedded in everyday life in Luxembourg. Recognising the need to foster greater inclusion and mutual understanding, a dedicated team of five members—Project Manager Mathieu, Project Secretary Constancia, and team members Sahra, Marie, and Anthony—worked together to design strategic initiatives, develop educational concepts, and implement meaningful actions aimed at addressing these challenges.

One of the project's key achievements was the organisation of an interactive workshop at the Jugendhaus Esch-sur-Alzette, bringing together eight participants in an open and welcoming environment. Through discussions, collaborative activities, and critical reflection, the workshop encouraged participants to explore their own identities, better understand interpersonal relationships, examine the socio-economic consequences of systemic discrimination, and reflect on how the values of inclusion and solidarity can be transformed into tangible actions within contemporary society.

« J'ai apprécié chaque réunion que nous avons eu. Elles m'ont permis d'en apprendre davantage sur la manière de démarrer mes projets. Le project manager ainsi que chaque membre ont toujours été très clairs dans leurs explications.

J'ai également participé à plusieurs workshops qui m'ont permis de rencontrer de nouvelles personnes et de progresser dans mon travail, notamment pour mon projet. J'ai eu l'occasion d'échanger avec des personnes à qui je n'avais jamais parlé auparavant et de les interviewer. » - Sahra

The participants demonstrated a strong interest throughout the workshop, actively engaging in discussions and sharing their perspectives with openness and curiosity. This first phase of the project successfully sparked meaningful conversations, encouraged critical reflection, and inspired participants to consider concrete ways of promoting inclusion and social cohesion within their own communities.

Following the initiative, the project established a valuable partnership with the Jugendhaus Esch-sur-Alzette, providing a solid foundation for future collaborations and reinforcing the project's long-term commitment to fostering dialogue, inclusion, and community engagement.

To ensure the long-term sustainability of the initiative, the project was temporarily paused while AJODD launched its Expansion Program. This strategic phase focused on recruiting and empowering new members, recognising that a broader and more diverse volunteer base was essential to strengthen the association's capacity and successfully relaunch its initiatives. By investing in organisational growth, AJODD aims to return to the project with renewed momentum, greater resources, and an even stronger commitment to creating lasting social impact.

Environment Week (Clean and preserve our planet) (Ongoing) [Rafael]

Environment Week is a five-day environmental initiative dedicated to protecting natural spaces while fostering greater ecological awareness among young people. By combining hands-on environmental action with critical reflection, the project encourages participants to recognise the importance of preserving the environment for present and future generations.

Throughout the programme, participants conduct waste assessments across different neighbourhoods, analysing the types and distribution of litter they encounter. These observations serve as the basis for exploring the environmental, economic, and social dimensions of waste management. Working collaboratively, participants are encouraged to develop long-term awareness strategies and formulate practical recommendations that can contribute to more sustainable local communities. The project culminates in the production of a comprehensive evaluation report, bringing together the data collected, key findings, and policy recommendations generated throughout the initiative.

This report will be shared with NGOs, AJODD's partner organisations, and other stakeholders directly connected to the association. As part of AJODDD's long-term vision of delivering recurring educational workshops over the coming years, the report is also intended to be communicated to the Luxembourgish Government, contributing to broader discussions on environmental awareness and civic engagement.

The project's strategic framework and implementation plan have already been fully developed. Responsibility for launching and coordinating the initiative will be transferred to the next President of AJODDD, ensuring continuity and reinforcing the association's long-term commitment to environmental action.

As a project designed to generate lasting impact, its success will be evaluated through participants' feedback collected via online questionnaires, as well as by assessing the quality, originality, and practical relevance of the recommendations developed throughout the programme. These evaluation methods will help measure both the educational value of the initiative and its potential to inspire long-term behavioural change and community engagement.

Invisible in Luxembourg - A Documentary on homelessness (Ongoing) [Kailani]

The symbolic vision behind this project is to shed light on the socio-economic realities of Luxembourg, with a particular focus on Luxembourg City, under the leadership of Kailani, the Project Manager. The main objective of this initiative is not only to raise awareness about a reality that is often overlooked, but also to challenge the stereotypes surrounding Luxembourg as a country entirely free from poverty and social inequalities.

To achieve this, a documentary will be produced to amplify the voices of people experiencing poverty in Luxembourg, while also including perspectives from representatives of NGOs and ASBL working directly in this field. By bringing together these different viewpoints, the project aims to create a more comprehensive understanding of poverty, highlighting both personal experiences and the collective efforts undertaken to address these challenges.

As part of the project's objectives, the team plans to interview five individuals experiencing poverty, as well as two representatives from NGOs or non-profit organisations specialised in social support and inclusion. As a long-term initiative, the project seeks to create lasting impact by increasing the visibility of these realities, encouraging public dialogue, and stimulating further discussions around social inequality and solidarity in Luxembourg.

The documentary is planned to be screened publicly, shared through AJODD’s communication channels, and potentially supported by the association’s partners. A dedicated team has already been established, and initial steps have been taken to prepare the next phases of development and implementation.

« The opposite of poverty is not wealth ; the opposite of poverty is justice » - Kailani

MindConnect: A Student Mental Health Support App (Ongoing) [Marie]

Many students struggle with stress, anxiety, and academic pressure, yet many of them lack awareness of the resources and support systems available to help them. In response to this challenge, the project developed by Marie aims to create a digital platform, available either as a mobile application or a website, designed to make mental health support more accessible to students.

The platform would provide students with tools such as emotional check-ins, personalised assessments of their needs, and opportunities to engage in more open and meaningful conversations with qualified professionals. By creating a more approachable and accessible support system, the initiative seeks to reduce barriers surrounding mental health assistance and encourage students to take a more active role in caring for their own well-being.

Beyond addressing the need for easier access to psychological support in Luxembourg, this project highlights the importance of recognising mental health and well-being as essential components of student life. The strategic direction of the initiative has already been established by the project leadership, while its future implementation and long-term impact will aim to provide a sustainable response to a fundamental challenge faced by young people.

Reimagined Fashion : An Upcycled Fashion Show (Pending) [Barbra]

The fashion industry is one of the most polluting industries in the world, generating significant amounts of textile waste and contributing to environmental degradation. The rise of fast fashion has encouraged patterns of overconsumption, shortened the lifespan of garments, and increased the disposal of clothing that could otherwise be reused, repaired, or transformed into new resources.

In response to this challenge, the project proposed by Barbra aims to highlight the importance of sustainable fashion and promote more responsible consumption habits among the public. Despite the growing interest in ecological alternatives, sustainable fashion remains insufficiently recognised and accessible, creating a need for greater awareness and engagement.

The main objective of this initiative is to organise a sustainable fashion event featuring second-hand clothing, environmentally friendly materials, and creative approaches to reducing textile waste. Through this event, participants will be encouraged to discover more sustainable alternatives while reflecting on the environmental and social impact of their consumption choices.

Due to the organisational and administrative requirements of the initiative, the project will be implemented under the responsibility of the next President, with the support of the Project Manager. A structured action plan, including clear stages, objectives, and a detailed timeline, will be developed to ensure an effective implementation process. The event is planned to take place towards the end of the year, most likely during the final three months, allowing sufficient time for preparation, partnerships, and coordination.

New Voices, Real Talent : A Music Festival (Pending) [Barbra]

Young and emerging artists often face limited access to performance opportunities, professional visibility, and supportive platforms where they can share their creativity. Without these opportunities, many talented individuals remain unseen, restricting their artistic development and limiting the cultural diversity that enriches communities.

Musicians are particularly affected by this challenge, which led AJODD to develop this initiative in order to create a space dedicated to supporting young artistic talent. By providing greater visibility to emerging musicians, the project aims not only to encourage the recognition of music as a valuable professional and cultural field in Luxembourg, but also to bring citizens together through shared experiences, cultural exchange, and collective memories.

The project is planned to take place in November and will be supported by AJODD members with musical backgrounds or a strong interest in the creative sector, who will contribute to building a dedicated implementation team. Due to the significant organisational, strategic, and administrative requirements involved, similar to the "Reimagined Fashion : An Upcycled Fashion Show" project, its development and execution will be led by the future President, with the objective of ensuring a structured and impactful realisation of the initiative.

Art Expression Project (Ongoing) [David]

AJODD recognises the essential role of art and culture in Luxembourg as powerful tools for bringing people together, encouraging creativity, and fostering dialogue across generations and communities. Artistic expression provides a common space where individuals can share ideas, explore human creativity, and highlight initiatives that contribute to the cultural richness of Luxembourg.

In this context, and in collaboration with Amnesty International Luxembourg, AJODD will organise a creative workshop where both emerging and experienced artists will be invited to produce artworks connected to human rights. Each edition of the workshop will focus on a specific theme related to human rights, such as women's rights, children's rights, or other major social issues, allowing participants to express their perspectives through artistic creation.

This unique workshop initiative was strategically encouraged and developed by the Vice-President, who identified the potential of combining artistic expression with human rights advocacy. Although the Project Manager contributed to the initial strategic development of the project, their involvement in the final implementation phase will be limited due to a change in project responsibilities.

Following the completion of the workshop, the artworks created by participants will be shared with Amnesty International and may be displayed during one of their human rights exhibitions organised as part of their advocacy initiatives. Through this collaboration, the project aims not only to showcase and celebrate the creativity and talent of participants, but also to amplify the importance of human rights awareness and encourage broader public reflection on these essential values.

Youth Questionnaire on Ecology (Pending) [Anthony]

This project focuses on raising environmental awareness among students and the wider public in Luxembourg about one of Europe's most pressing ecological challenges : the ongoing degradation of biodiversity and natural ecosystems. Through dialogue and public engagement, the initiative seeks to explore how individuals perceive their environmental responsibilities, assess their understanding of the interconnected climate, ecological, and political issues surrounding biodiversity loss, and encourage more informed discussions on the role of active citizenship in addressing these challenges.

Significant progress has already been made in developing the project's strategic framework and defining its objectives. Although the original Project Manager stepped down from overseeing the project's development and implementation, AJODD remains fully committed to bringing the initiative to life. As part of its organisational renewal, the association will invite new members and individuals with a strong interest in environmental issues to contribute to the completion of the project. By expanding its network of engaged volunteers, AJODD aims to deliver tangible short-term impact while laying the foundations for sustained environmental awareness and civic engagement in the years ahead.

Subject II - Partnerships and Collaborations

AJODD - Revitaliser la Démojeunesse

Introduction: Revitaliser la Démojeunesse (RDJ) is a youth-focused organisation based in Luxembourg, primarily active in Esch-sur-Alzette, the second-largest city in the country. The association aims to encourage youth engagement by promoting awareness around essential topics such as environmental responsibility, civic participation, and the development of initiatives that contribute positively to Luxembourgish society.

RDJ has been a long-standing partner of AJODD, and the collaboration between both organisations has helped strengthen youth involvement and highlight the importance of collective action in building a more sustainable and inclusive city. Through shared initiatives and common values, both associations work towards empowering young people, encouraging them to take an active role in their communities, and promoting sustainable solutions adapted to local challenges.

Sustainability Youth Ambassadors (Ongoing)

Young people still face challenges in adopting sustainable behaviours in their everyday lives, particularly regarding circular economy practices, waste reduction, responsible consumption, sustainable transportation, and efficient energy management. In response to these challenges, the Sustainability Youth Ambassadors project aims to empower a group of young participants by providing them with the knowledge, skills, and tools needed to better understand and address these environmental issues through creative, interactive, and inclusive activities.

AJODD has actively contributed to this initiative by supporting the participation of its members and providing logistical assistance, including support with the equipment and materials required throughout the activities. Through this involvement, AJODD has helped strengthen the project's implementation and encouraged greater youth engagement around environmental responsibility.

Sustainability Youth Ambassadors represents an important initiative as it places ecological responsibility at the centre of local discussions and provides young people with the cultural and educational resources needed to approach environmental challenges critically. By encouraging participants to develop recommendations, share ideas, and identify concrete solutions, the project supports the transition from awareness to meaningful action within the community.

The project was also recognised with an award during the Anefore Summerfest, an event celebrating projects supported by the European Solidarity Corps. This recognition highlights not only the credibility and impact of the initiative, but also contributes to strengthening its visibility among institutions, NGOs, and organisations working within the fields of sustainability, youth engagement, and social innovation.

Project Access for Youth Volunteers (Pending)

Project Access for Youth Volunteers (PAYV) is an initiative designed to train 20 young volunteers in the development, coordination, and management of civic projects within the youth sector. Over a period of 16 months, the project will provide participants with 11 workshops focused on strengthening their abilities in project management, organisational governance, and the development of essential transversal skills.

Through practical learning experiences and collaborative activities, PAYV aims to empower young people by giving them the tools and confidence needed to actively contribute to their communities and develop meaningful youth-led initiatives.

AJODD will actively support and promote this project by encouraging the involvement of young members and strengthening awareness of opportunities for youth participation. A future cooperation strategy is also planned between the President of Revitaliser la Démojeunesse (RDJ) and the future President of AJODD, with the objective of reinforcing collaboration between both organisations and creating further opportunities for youth empowerment and civic engagement.

United by Sports (Pending)

United by Sport is a social cohesion initiative consisting of 13 interactive workshops designed for 30 young volunteers from both national and European backgrounds, aged between 15 and 30 years old. Taking place over a period of 16 months, the project aims to overcome the social barriers that young people may experience within a multicultural environment such as Luxembourg, while promoting intercultural understanding, inclusion, and a stronger sense of community.

Through participatory, collective, and inclusive sports activities, the project uses sport as a universal language that allows young people to connect beyond cultural, social, or linguistic differences. By creating a space where communication is based on cooperation, teamwork, and shared experiences, United by Sport encourages young participants to build meaningful relationships and develop a greater appreciation of diversity.

Recognising sport as an important element in youth development and as a practice that contributes to physical and mental well-being, AJODD strongly supports this initiative and considers it aligned with its values of inclusion, solidarity, and active citizenship. The association also aims to develop closer collaboration with the project in the future, strengthening opportunities for youth engagement and intercultural exchange.

Montenegro - Luxembourg

Introduction: Danilo, a young and engaged individual from Montenegro, has become a close partner of AJODD due to his strong commitment to youth engagement, cultural exchange, and the promotion of inclusive dialogue between communities. Through his dedication and shared values, he has contributed to strengthening the connection between Luxembourg and Montenegro by encouraging initiatives that bring young people together and foster mutual understanding.

This partnership aims to create concrete opportunities for communication, collaboration, and cultural exchange between participants from both countries. By developing projects centred around solidarity, inclusion, and shared experiences, AJODD and Danilo seek to build stronger connections between communities while supporting values aligned with European cooperation and Montenegro's future integration within the European Union.

Through this collaboration, AJODD continues to expand its international network and promote the idea that youth-led initiatives can serve as a bridge between cultures, encouraging openness, cooperation, and collective progress beyond national borders.

Chess Competition (Ongoing)

The main objective of this project is to create a structured, accessible, and inclusive environment where students from Luxembourg and Montenegro can engage with one another through a shared strategic activity : chess. By using chess as a universal language that transcends linguistic, cultural, and geographical differences, the initiative aims to encourage meaningful interaction, strengthen concentration and strategic thinking, and create opportunities for young people from different national backgrounds to develop mutual understanding.

Beyond the competitive dimension of the game, chess represents a powerful educational and social tool. It encourage participants to think critically, analyse situations from different perspectives, anticipate consequences, and make thoughtful decisions. Through repeated interactions, students will not only improve their strategic abilities but also develop patience, resilience, respect for others, and the capacity to collaborate within an international setting.

The chess exchange project aims to :

- Create opportunities for intercultural interaction between students from Luxembourg and Montenegro by connecting young participants through a shared activity that encourages communication, cooperation, and the discovery of different cultural perspectives. By engaging regularly with peers from another European country, students will develop a stronger sense of openness and international awareness.
- Promote analytical thinking, problem-solving, and decision-making skills through the practice of chess, a strategic game requiring planning, adaptation, and long-term reflection. Participants will learn to evaluate different possibilities, understand the consequences of their choices, and approach challenges with a structured mindset.
- Encourage values such as fair play, patience, respect, and resilience by creating a competitive yet supportive environment. Chess allows students to experience both success and failure in a constructive way, teaching them the importance of perseverance, self-improvement, and respect towards their opponents.
- Provide an inclusive exchange format accessible to a diverse range of students, including those who may feel less confident participating in traditional discussion-based intercultural activities. By placing the focus on a shared strategic activity rather than verbal communication alone, the project creates a more comfortable environment where every participant can contribute and engage at their own pace.
- Strengthen peer-to-peer relationships and intercultural awareness through repeated exchanges, mixed-country pairings, and continuous interaction between participants. Over time, these connections will encourage students to move beyond stereotypes, develop friendships, and gain a deeper appreciation of different cultural backgrounds.
- Ensure accessibility and practical feasibility through an online implementation format. By organising the exchange digitally, the project reduces logistical and financial barriers while allowing students from both countries to participate regularly regardless of geographical distance. This approach also supports the long-term sustainability of the initiative and facilitates future expansion with additional participants or partner organisations.

Through this project, chess becomes more than a strategic game : it becomes a bridge between communities, a tool for youth empowerment, and a platform for developing European citizenship based on dialogue, respect, and shared learning experiences.

Youth Dialogue (Pending)

The main objective of this project is to provide students with an authentic, engaging, and motivating environment in which they can practise spoken English through meaningful interaction with peers from another European country. By moving beyond traditional classroom exercises and creating a real-life communication context, the initiative aims to help students develop greater confidence, spontaneity, and comfort when using English as a tool for dialogue and connection.

Rather than focusing solely on linguistic accuracy, the project places emphasis on communication, exchange, and the ability to express ideas in an international environment. Through regular peer-to-peer interactions, students will have the opportunity to experience English as a living language used for collaboration, cultural exchange, and mutual understanding.

The project aims to :

- Encourage the active use of spoken English in authentic communication contexts by allowing students to interact directly with international peers. Through conversations, collaborative activities, and shared discussions, participants will practise using English naturally and develop greater fluency in everyday communication.
- Strengthen students' confidence in expressing ideas, opinions, and arguments in English by creating a supportive environment where they can communicate freely without fear of making mistakes. The project encourages students to take initiative, share their perspectives, and develop their ability to articulate thoughts clearly.

- Develop listening, interaction, and discussion skills through peer-to-peer exchange by exposing students to different communication styles, accents, and cultural perspectives. These exchanges will help participants become more adaptable listeners and more effective communicators in multicultural environments.
- Support critical thinking and personal reflection through guided thematic discussions by encouraging students to explore relevant social, cultural, and European topics. These discussions will allow participants to exchange viewpoints, question different perspectives, and develop a deeper understanding of issues beyond their immediate environment.
- Complement existing English language education without creating additional academic pressure or assessment requirements by offering a non-formal learning experience focused on participation, engagement, and personal development rather than grades. The project aims to enrich existing curricula by providing practical opportunities for students to apply their language skills in a meaningful setting.

By connecting students from different European backgrounds, this initiative transforms English learning into an opportunity for intercultural dialogue, confidence-building, and the development of essential skills for active participation in an increasingly interconnected world.

AJODD - Amnesty International Luxembourg

Amnesty National Youth Club (Pending)

Create a national youth group that will lead the future of youth activism in Luxembourg.

Human Rights Exhibition (Ongoing)

The Human Rights Exhibition aims to create a meaningful platform where art becomes a tool for awareness, dialogue, and social reflection. The initiative focuses on organising an artistic exhibition centred around a chosen human rights or social issue, with the initial theme focusing on women's rights and the challenges related to gender equality.

By combining artistic creation with research and public engagement, the project seeks to explore complex social topics from multiple perspectives. AJODD will collaborate with specialised NGOs and organisations working in the relevant fields to gather reliable information, historical context, and expert perspectives that will support the development of the exhibition's content. These partnerships will ensure that the artistic work presented is not only creative, but also informed by real experiences and social realities.

As part of the preparation process, a series of workshops will be organised with young people in Luxembourg to encourage participation, discussion, and collective reflection. These workshops will provide participants with the opportunity to share their perspectives, explore the chosen topic, and contribute to the creation of artworks that represent different experiences and points of view. By involving youth directly in the artistic process, the project aims to promote ownership, creativity, and a deeper understanding of the social issues addressed.

The final exhibition will showcase the artworks created throughout the project, including contributions supported through the Art Expression Project, which will provide additional artistic pieces to enrich the exhibition. The event will serve as a space for cultural exchange, public awareness, and dialogue between artists, young participants, partner organisations, and the wider community.

Through this initiative, AJODD aims to demonstrate the power of art as a means of communication and advocacy, transforming creative expression into a tool for promoting human rights, inclusion, and social change.

AJODD - United Nation Youth Delegates

UN Youth Delegates Roundtable (Implemented)

The UN Youth Delegates Roundtable is an initiative organized by AJODD in regard of the main topic of sustainable development. Subject III - Procedures, Programs and Documentation

Expansion Program

After careful consideration, the Past Presidential Bureau agreed that AJODD is under the risk of becoming inactive within the next 6 months for lack of people to ensure its continuity and activities by replacing the members who will leave to pursue superior studies. As such, the Current Presidential Bureau undertaken by Mathieu Plaquevent, has decided to implement the program as a mean to search for members within the youth population thus neutralizing the immediate risk and ensuring this risk will happen again.

The expansion program presents the fragilities of the association, the objectives therefore extrapolated, strategy to achieve them, the operational aspects, the milestones chronologically, a risk assessment, and the evaluation and supervision methods for the success and milestones, all within the scope of maintaining the association operational after the July fracture.

Particular attention shall be given to empowering young members, encouraging innovation, and ensuring that all initiatives contribute meaningfully to the Association's objectives.

The Presidency further commits to strengthening and expanding cooperation with external institutions, civil society organizations, public authorities, educational establishments, and private-sector partners. Beyond documenting activities, the Action Tracking File aims to provide AJODD with a structured system for planning, evaluating, and coordinating strategic decisions in a more efficient and productive manner. By centralising relevant information, monitoring progress, and identifying future priorities, the document will support better organisation, clearer communication among members, and more effective implementation of the association's objectives.

The main objective of this initiative is to increase AJODD's management, strengthen its external presence, and showcase the impact of its projects and actions. By improving communication and demonstrating the association's involvement in meaningful initiatives, the Action Tracking File is expected to contribute to attracting new members, encouraging greater engagement, and reinforcing AJODD's identity as a youth-led organisation committed to social inclusion, sustainability, and civic participation.

Roles and Missions (document)

This official administrative document has been created to clearly define, organise, and monitor the roles, responsibilities, and missions of each member within the association. As AJODD continues to grow, evolve, and welcome new contributors, establishing a structured framework is essential to ensure effective coordination, transparency, and a clear understanding of individual responsibilities.

The document serves as a reference tool for members, helping to clarify expectations, facilitate collaboration, and improve the overall functioning of the association. It also supports the distribution of tasks, the coordination between different teams, and the efficient implementation of AJODD's projects and initiatives.

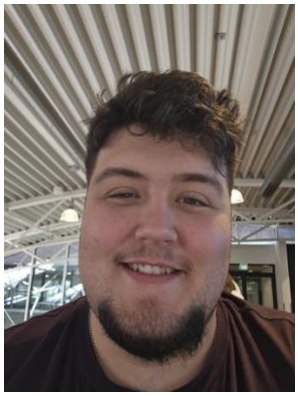
Subject V - Final Note from the President and Vice President

AJODD, with all its components, is a living ASBL, moving energetically towards progress and achievement. I am very proud of the outcome and innovations of our members, and I strongly believe in the success of our association.

Being a 4 month-long president taught me how short our time can be, but also how fruitful projects can be achieved.

The 17 SDGs are part of our everyday commitment, and yet this is only the beginning of a long journey!



During my time as vice president of AJODD, I learned many valuable lessons. Still, if there's one key takeaway from holding a leadership role, it’s to have someone you can trust by your side. That’s what the VP role is mainly about—not just signing papers, but being someone you can rely on and confide in about anything you can't solve alone.

At the same time, ensure they trust you as well. The presidential board is the final decision-making body, so the people you have with you make your experience at AJODD meaningful. Communicate openly and build trust. I believe you, as the next president, will do great—best of luck. Keep the organization I started with Martim running, and make the difference we know you are capable of.

This Presidential Overview is handed to the next President of AJODD and shall be official on the 31st of July 2026.
